INSTALLATION NEW OFFICERS KIWANIS TODAY

Year's Secretarial Report Made, New President, C. A. Blackburn, Makes Recommendations Appoints Committee

DR. HAYS, COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER, MAKES GOOD TALK

Installation of new officers and reports of retiring officers too kup most of the time at the Kiwanis Club luncheon today. At the close of these services, Dr. George Hays, county health officer, made a very interesting talk on health topics. Dr. C. K. Brosheer was chairman of the meeting today.

C. A. Blackburn, the retiring secretory ,made a report of his year's work. indicating the addition of 11 new members this past year and announcing the splendid financial condition of the club at this time with all dues paid and a surplus in the treasury. The books were turned over to the new secretary, R. L. Kincaid.

A. P. Liebig, the retiring president, then made a short talk thanking the members for their co-operation during the year. He introduced the new president, Mr. Blackburn, who spoke a few words outlining the work he recommended being taken up during the year and naming the standing committees to serve during the year. He also appointed as a committee to act on the proposition to divide this judicial district, Judge J. R. Sampson, R. L. Maddox and John Howard.

Dr. Hays, the health officer, was introduced by Dr. Brosheer. He began explaining the work that was being done to keep Bell county fit, describing the way contagious diseases that might be wide sweeping are broken up. He told of children, crippled with infantile paralysis, who had been cured by operation and he explained the great work being done in the county by examination of all school children, one-third of whom had been found to have correctable defects.

Dr. Hays spoke particularly of the work being done in venereal cases. He said two clinics had been operating during the past year three days each week in Pineville and Middlesboro, and that during that time 3600 visits had been made by patients to the clinic. The average number treated, he said, for syphilis a month averaged 27 men and 25 women, 80 per cent of whom were under 30 years of age and 60 per cent under 20. He told of the deplorable conditions out in the mountains where families suffer from the dreaded venereal diseases for three and four generations, ignorant of the real trouble. However, he declared that the county is now cleaner than it has been in years.

Recommendations made by the new president follow:

"I want to urge that the program chairman arrange for an educational meeting on Kiwanis each month. That we observe as many special days set aside by Kiwanis International as possible.

"That we undertake some social service work—the under-privileged child'—indorsed by Kiwanis International.

"That we make efforts to secure factories for our city.

"That we take steps to secure a more adequate burying place for our city's dead, or at least fix days when Kiwanians, as a body, will go to the different cemeteries and clean the briars, weeds and sprouts out.

"That we lend our moral support to the great educational institution near us—Lincoln Memorial university.

"That we work with the city administration to make Middlesboro a more sanitary city in which to live.

"Here are a fo wthings which we would do well to consider for some future work:

ROBSION DISCUSSES CAPITOL POLITICS

Conditions in Washington Interesting; Congressman Says, But too Much Intrigue.

LEXINGTON, Dec., 27.—There is some very interesting politics now in progress in Washington, J. M. Robsion, of Barbourville, congressman from the Eleventh district of Kentucky, who was in Lexington Sunday declared. He added, by the way of qualification, "But there's entirely too much of it."

Mr. Robsion, who is on his way to his district, where he will spend the gress, declared that in the house unholiday recess before returning to conder the leadership of Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, the Republicans had formed into a somewhat solid rank.

"The senate ,however ,is still fighting." he added. "The address made in the house by Representative Dailey, of Texas, the chairman of the Democratic caucus, had more to do with cementing the Republicans than anything else. Dailey said what in fact was a notice that the Democrats didn't want the insurrectionists who call themselves progressives on the Democratic side. They had nowhere else to go but back into the the ranks of their own party. There are many legislators both on the Democratic and Republican side who still do not understand why Mr. Dailey took itupon himself to 'give the air' to the self styled progressives.

Discussing President Calvin Coolidge, with particular reference to how his administration up to the present will affecthis chances for the Republican presidentlal nomination. Mr. Robsion said: "Mr. Coolidge hasn't said much lately, but then he hasn't had to."

The congressman wouldn't diagram this sentence.

CITY BARBER SHOP PURCHASED FROM COSTANZAS

The City Barber Shop has recently been purchased from Paschal Constanza by A. C. Miraclo and W. O. Hickey, the latter now being manager of the place.

Mr. Hickey has lived in Middlesboro since 1888 here, though has kept out of town much of the time by his minin ginterests at St. Charles, Va. His mines recently closed on account of dull business and it is for this reason that he acquired the interest in the barber shop. The other partner is taking no part in the work or management of the place.

The barber shop also has a pool room and lunch stand in connection, these being also acquired by the new owners. Paschal and Tony Constanza are still working at the shop.

CITY TO PAY FOR EAST END DETOUR REPAIR

Used 73 Loads of Slag—Bill for Repairs on 19th Street and Building Catch Basins and Sidewalk Ordered Paid

LAST MEETING OF COUNCIL WILL BE DECEMBER 31

The city of Middlesboro will bear the expense of the East End detour repairs recently made by merchants in order to make the route passable. This section was agreed upon at the council meeting last night.

According to the report submitted. 73 loads of slag were used in making the improvements and a man from the Humbard Construction company assisted in the work. The bill which the merchants had guaranteed amounted to $94.25.

A bill for repairs on Nineteenth St. was submitted by the Humbard Construction company, this work being a repair job for which the city had agreed to pay half of the expense. The part which the city will pay amounts to $250.37.

Another bill for construction of the catch basins at Dorchester avenue and Twenty-fifth street and for making a section of sidewalk in front of the Carnegie library was presented, the entire cost of the work being $100.40. This likewise was ordered paid.

The ordinance apportioning the cost of the street improvements on Ashbury avenue between Nineteenth street and Fitzpatrick avenue passed the second reading.

The question of whether or not another council meeting will be held was discussed. Mayor J. H. Keeney stated that the members would hold their positions until January 7 and that another and final meeting should be held. It was decided that the next meeting will take place on Monday, December 31.

COAL PRODUCTION SHOWS BIG SLUMP

According To Figures Compiled By Secretary E. R. Clayton of Association.

Secretary E. R. Clayton issued the following figures which he has made public:

There were 2330 mines in operation on January 1, 1923, east of the Mississippi river, not including Pennsylvania, Indiana nor Ohio, with a daily tonnage production of 843,463. In the same territory the same number of mines in operation on Dec. 1, 1923, was only 1392. with a daily tonnage production of 551,420 a decrease in the number of mines in operation of 938 ,and a decreased tonnage production of 292,043.

Gaging the total tonnage production on January 1, 1923, 843,463, from a total of 2330 mines in operation, it gives an average output of 362 tons per mine.

Taking the total number of mines, in operation on Dec. 1, 1923, 1392, and the total daily tonnage, 551,430, it shows an average production of 396 tons—just a little more than the average production on Jan. 1, 1923.

The most notiecable slump in production is in West Virginia, where the total number of mines in operation on Jan. 1 was 335 as compared to 140 on Dec. 1.

The figures for Harlan county show 87 mines in operation on Jan. 1, with a daily production of 74,800 tons. December 1 shows only 57 mines in operation with a daily production of 46,850 tons—a decrease in mines of 30, a little more than one-third, and a decrease in tons of 27,950, more than one-third decrease.

The New River field seems to have suffered the least of any field embraced in Mr. Clayton's figures. In this field the number of mines in operation have fallen from 132 to 102, but the dail production has decreased only from 58,240 to 50,835—7,855 tons.—Harlan Enterprise.

NO CONFLICT OF SCIENCE, RELIGION

President American Science Association Says Two Are Reconcilable—Believes in Evolution

Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Dec. 27.—There is no conflict between science and religion, Dr. Chas. Wallcott, president of the American Association for Advancement of Science, declared here today. Although a believer in the theory of evolution, Dr. Wallcott, who is here for a convention of his organization, says scientific discoveries may well be reconciled with religious beliefs. He said the theory of evolution is strongly borne out by a study of fossils and indicated they finally culminated in primitive man as disclosed by the ancient caves of central Europe.

KLAN OFIFCIAL WOULD REMEDY KU KLUX EVILS

Former High Counselor Writes Coolidge He Will Co-operate in Ending Sinister Activities of the Organization

CALLS ON BETTER ELEMENT TO REMEDY EXISTING EVILS

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—E. Y. Clarke, formerly high in the council of the Ku Klux klan, wrote President Coolidge today offering to co-operate with the president in ending the activities of an "element" which is converting the klan into an entirely different organization vastly differing from that planned by the founders. Clarke also announced his intention of issuing a proclamation to klansmen calling the better element to either take hold and "remedy existing evils" or to disband the organization.

ADD TO PILLOW CASERS . . . . . .

Clarke, who signed himself "Imperial Giant" of the klan made various charges against the activities of the organization in disregard of its high ideals and purposes and also declared he could not rest passive under existing conditions. He tendered to the president his assistance in eliminating certain elements of the klan, thus permitting iti to function as a character-building organization. "The klan's original purpose," Clarke said, "was development through educational and scientific propaganda in the lodge rooms; the establishment of universities in various parts of the country, and through building magnificent hospitals." He asserted the trend was recently in an entirely different direction, however.

Cumberland Gap Logical Sife For Establishment of Eastern National Park

Establishment of a National Park at Cumberland Gap, as has been proposed in a bill introduced into congress by Representative Robsion, besides preserving a typical Appalachian mountain section, accessible to the public and forming a delightful natural resort, would mark a spot hallowed by Kentucky history and make a national shrine of a pass through which marched the ancestors of hundreds of thousands of those now living in the North and West, on their way to the new land.

The first white man ever to cast eyes on what is now Kentucky—Dr. Thomas Walker of Virginia—came through the Cumberland Gap, which he then named Cave Gap, in 1750, with a party of other explorers. They camped and hunted on Yellow Creek, which runs through the town of Middlesboro, discovered the Cumberland River and gave it its name, and spent their first night in Kentucky on the banks of Clear Creek at Pineville, to which they gave the name of Clover Creek, on account of the profusion of clover growing on its banks.

Up to that time, and for years afterward, the gap was an Indian warriors' trail, the passageway between the lands of the northern and southern tribes, and often it had been the Cherokees and their enemies in the north.

Daniel Boone, following the same trail that Dr. Walker blazed, came into Kentucky through this natural opening in the mountain range. A monument of stones erected to Boone now stands near the pass.

History again left its mark at the gap in the days of the war of Secession. After the retreat of Bragg from Perryville, General Stephenson with Confederate forces, occupied the town of Cumberland Gap, which was a tented field of soldiers. His troops constructed roads up into the gap—the same which now form a foundation of the Wilderness Trail, known as the Boone Trail and the Eastern Dixie highway. The road went down the mountain on the northern side to Yellow Creek. Strong breastworks were thrown up along the rugged mountain sides forming what then were well nigh impregnable defenses. The pass was guarded for miles.

Traces of this occupation still are visible and are pointed out to visitors. On the Kentucky side, almost underneath the frowning rocky cliffside of the Pinnacle mountin, is one great earthwork in a fairly well preserved condition. It can easily be seen from the road. Trees of great size have grown up in and around the fortifications.

Pinnacle Mountain, from whose summit one can obtain an awe-inspiring view of the countryside of three states—Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia—abounds with caves which could be developed into a great natural curiosity. Many of these, undoubtedly, connect.

The news of the day speaks of the possibility of a Kentucky State Fish Hatchery being established at Fern Lake, which nestles in the mountains in the Kentucky side of the gap—an artificial lake from which Middlesboro obtains its water supply, but several miles long and a charming spot.

The Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn., just south of the gap, holds title to more than 2,000 acres of land in and around Pinnacle Mountain, which it has offered to the Government. More land probably will have to be bought by private subscription and the whole donated to the government before the proposed Lincoln National Park could be established.

There already is a passable road to Middlesboro through Kentucky. Several gaps of unpaved sections in the Eastern Dixie are being maintained in passable condition, through graveling, temporary burned slate covering and other means adopted by a volunteer organization in Whitley Knox and Bell counties. There is a splendid road from Knoxville north to the gap. When the good roads program finishes this stretch, Middlesboro will have to employ that traffic policeman the Bell county editor predicted three years ago. If a park should be established and a hotel constructed at the gap for summer and fall tourists, the town will have to hire a dozen traffic policemen.—Courier-Journal.

DR. GRAY DEFENDS VIRGIN BIRTH TRUTH

Former Local Pastor Speaks to Lexington Congregation on Controversial Topic.

An eddy of the controversial storm that has embroiled the clergy of American churches swirled in Lexington Sunday, when at least two of the city's ministers announced themselves as opposed to any teaching that attempts to refute the Immaculate conception and the virgin birth of Christ.

"The minister of Jesus Christ who ceases to believe in the virgin birth of our Lord should unfrock himself of his vestments ,step down from his pulpit and stop preaching, for he has no right in that sacred office, and is no longer a true minister of his Lord, but a pretender." said Dr. J. Archer Gray, minister of Maxwell Presbyterian church, speaking before a large audience Sunday morning.

Dr. Gray, attacking the modernists, declared that "these men have made no new discovery for the controversy is as old as Christianity. Early in the church the question was raised, groups of men and women formed new churches leaving out the virgin birth, but one by one they saw their little day and passed out. In almost every generation at some time or other, whether for sensational purposes or just to attract attention they could not get in any other way, certain men have raised this question from its grave, and have invited the people to look once more on its inanimate form.

"There ar 333—mark the ease of remembering this number—there are 333 references to the old testement regarding the Messiah, prophecies which speak of Him in every conceivable way and show Him from every possible angle, and all fullfill the new testement, but there are just two of them I wish to refer to, and both prove He was to be born of a virgin. You will remember when the unhappy pair were driven forth from Eden, God said 'the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent,' not the seed of a man nor of the race, but the seed of the woman.

"Then in Isaiah 7, is the story of the sacking of Judah ,and the prophets promise that the kingdom should not be destroyed as long as the house of David lasted, and the saying was that a virgin should give birth to a child whose name should be called Emmanuel, and although Judah went through trials enough to swamp a less believing nation, the house of David preisted till the Child was born of the virgin, and then it crumbled and fell.

"The wise men showed the right spirit in bringing the Babe their treasures .They were scientists and took the right spirit and God spoke to them and instructed them. Thus it will always be when science kneels at the feet of Christ and opens up her treasures. Here is the realm of inspiration from God. Here is the place of wisdom ,ignorance seeking learning, and here is the true place of science and the scientist, journeying across deserts ,bearing burdens, suffering heat and cold, hunger and thirst, driven on by just one thing; a star that leads to a manger and a Babe that leads to God.

85 STILLS TAKEN IN VA. THIS YEAR

State Dry Officer Here Today Says 200 Have Been Arrested for Making Liquor

Eighty-five stills have been captured by raiding posses led by C. H. Redmond, Virginia state prohibition agent, in Virginia this year. Mr. Redmend who was in Middlesboro today stated that over 200 persons had been arrested for moonshining.

Eight stills were captured the week before Christmas, this apparently cutting off the holiday supply of liquor as not a single case of drunkeness came to the attention of the officer on Christmas day.

Mr. Redmond, who has been a prohibition officer since the national amendment went into effect, states that the violations are decreasing annually in his state. Not half the number of stills were found this year as were confiscated last year and other liquor law violations have decreased in proportion.

BIG LOUISVILLE FIRE THREATENS CITY THIS P. M.

All Fire-fighting Apparatus in City Is Called Out to Hughes Lumber Company—Blaze Sweep Toward Broadway

MEAGER REPORTS INDICATE CONSIDERABLE DESTRUCTION

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 27.—Fire alarms drew every piece of fire fighting apparatus in the city to the plant of W. J. Hughes & Sons' Lumber company, Fourteenth and Maple streets, shortly before 1 o'clock today. The police department also sent a pulmotor to the scene, indicating the lives of the firemen were endangered.

A few minutes later reports said the blaze had reached the plant of the Louisville Paint and Varnish company and was sweeping toward Broadway.

LITTLE DISORDERLINESS IN CITY DURING HOLIDAYS

Christmas has gone without any seserious trouble and with few cases of disorderliness, offering a pleasing contrast to the olden times when the Yuletide season was ever an occasion for shooting affrays and other serious trouble.

The day passed without any arrests being made by the day policemen. Late Tuesday night, 3 men were arrested two for alleged drunkenness and one for shooting in the city limits. The latter, like many others, was merely celebrating the occasion perhaps without knowing that shooting is prohibited.

HEARING SET FOR ROSE HILL MAN CHARGED WITH MURDER

Preliminary hearing of Berney Dillman, charged with killing Wilson Hall, near Rose Hill, Saturday, is set for tomorrow, according reports received from there today.

Witnesses say that Hall approached Dillman and began a tirade of abusive language. When the latter requested him to hush, Hall is said to have reached into the pockett of a man named Cottrell who was standing nearby for a gun. It was then that Dillman drew his pistol and fired five times, killing Hall instantly.

The alleged slayer submitted to arrest and was later released on a bond of $2,000.

GIRL INSTANTLY KILLED BY EIGHT YEAR OLD BOY

HARLAN, Dec. 27.—The little six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam Drew was shot and instantly killed on the porch of her home in Sunshine at three o'clock Thursday afternoon by Master William Bledsoe, age 10, son of Rev. John Bledsoe, a nearby neighbor.

The boy secured a shot gun and came over to the Drew home, calling the little girl out on the porch, according to the latest available information. The boy, pranking with the trigger, caused the gun to go off while pointing it at her.

J. W. SCALES PLANS EAST END AUTO REPAIR SHOP

J. W. Scales is preparing to establish an auto repair shop and filling station on East Cumberland avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, using the vacant building there. Work of digging the pit for the gasoline tank began today.

The business will be conducted under the name of Scales Bros., though it will have no connection with the the other Scales company. General repairing will be done and gas, oil and accessories will be sold. Mr. Scales plans to enlarge the building should the business warrant such expense.

GREAT SALE OF FRUITS DURING CHRISTMAS SEASON

Though all kinds of Christmas goods sold in unusual quantities, the sale of fruit was perhaps the greatest, at least in regard to the stock on hands. Both the Lovett and W. R. Strange wholesale companies were entirely out of fruit on Monday night. Members of both firms say more fruit was sold this Christmas than ever before.

No estimates of the quantity of fruits sold were made, the Strange company reported that the seven carloads of apples received shortly before Christmas were all sold. Other fruits were sold in proportion.

PRESIDENTIAL YEAR DEPRESSION ALL BOSH

The generally accepted conviction that a presidential year means poor business is characterized as "idle and foolish" by Congressman Martin L. Davey of Ohio in an article on "Why Fear a Presidential Year," in the current number of The Nation's Business.

Mr. Davey, who writes as a business man rather than a member of Congress, declares that when business was below normal in past presidential years this condition was due to some underlying economic cause and not to the fact that a president was to be elected. Since 1880, according to Congressman Davey, there have been five lean presidential years and five fat years. The last presidential year, 1920, had six months of good and six months of poor business.

Congressman Davey predicts that "unless a majority of us get the foolish notion that business is bound to be bad in a presidential year, 1924 should be a period of substantial normal business conditions."

HUMANE EDUCATION FOR MASSES OF PEOPLE

The four items included herewith were submitted with a plea that the editor print them as a part of a campaign for humane education of the masses of the people of our country.

These short items are well worth the consideration of our readers who, while few of them are ever deliberately inhuman, have given too little thought to the care of their dumb animal friends.

The Horse Coming Back

The predictors of the horseless age lost sight of the fact that there is another element to reckon with beside the one of the mere usefulness of the horse. Human gratitude for the long career of service without which civilization would not have made its present strides has created a bond of attachment between man and the horse that will not be easily broken. The time when man first discovered the docile and tractable qualities of the horse is not known. Although the ox as a domestic work animal is doubtless of greater age, the horse was known as a military and first for cavalry and later for chariot use nearly as long ago as written records of history extend. In the wars between Persia, Egypt and Greece the side was often victorious that had the most and best horses. The steed of the Arab is a classic of primitive romance. Those nations that made the best use of the horse made the most rapid progress in the evolution of culture.

Our Wild Game

That 50 percent of the wild denizens of field and woodland will have parted with their life this year because of the use of the automobile in hunting, is the statement of Dr. William T. Hornaday of New York City. That is to say the modern hunter can easily cover far more territory than could be covered by the hunter who went afoot or followed after a horse. Dr. Hornaday says that four times the former area can be covered by the automobile hunter. The distinguished director of the New York Zoological Garden thinks that our wild game is doomed unless protective measures are adopted.

In addition to protective legislation Dr. Hornaday would call on the good sportsmanship of the hunter. Let the hunter go out and take a ten on the toll, recognizing the new peril to wild life. He appeals to the sentiment of self interest. Otherwise legislation will not be able to preserve the birds of the air and beasts of the field that have long made the country of ours a hunter's paradise. The young generation must hide from much useless slaughter [illegible].

Life With Plant and Animals

People who have never tried life on a farm have no idea of the attraction that comes to a normal minded man or woman from living with growing things. There is a wonderful sense of companionship in farm animals. The man who treats them kindly finds they are worth their keep, that there is something more than the [illegible] that they give to the comfort of the master.

Even the flowers and the vegetables in the garden seem due to have personality. They make a grateful response to the effort put forth to rescue them from weeds and to give them water in the dry time, and come to thank you for recalling their effort to grow and flourish. There are many rewards of happiness in the contact with nature which are more satisfying than artificial pleasure.—Southfield News Observer.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON, CONTINUED

I am wondering, Syd, why it is that I am not more furious over the situation. Why should Leslie ask some other man's advice, and why should this other man think he had to write to tell her to consult her own attorney.

I don't mind telling you that my heart stood still when I read that cablegram. Of course the first thing I thought of was that she was thinking of getting a divorce from me. But I really could not see any reason for this, for I have been perfectly true to her ever since our marriage, and while I have perhaps been less attentive to her than I might have been, surely she must understand that after marriage life is something besides a series of moonlight and flower thrills.

Of course I know I hurt her pride most terribly when I sent her to her father for money. No woman wants to confess to her family that she has not only married unwisely, but one who will use her to get him out of a tight scrape.

I have the greatest contempt for myself, Syd, every time I think of that episode.

I know she was not only greatly disappointed in me, but the fact that she had to tell her father some trumped-up excuse or by telling him the truth explain that she had married a man who was less honorable than she had thought, must have almost broken her heart.

If I thought she would understand I would tell her the whole blamed thing, just as you advised me. No woman can understand the complex heart or mind of man.

To tell the truth, we don't understand ourselves.

I am quite sure Leslie has made a confidant of Ruth Ellington, and you know of course that a woman who has lived with Harry Ellington could have very little respect for the masculine sex.

I don't know exactly what Ruth has said to Leslie, but I do know Leslie is much more independent, much surer of herself, much less dependent upon me since Ruth has opened that shop here in town.

I am beginning to suspect she is all the while thinking, "If Ruth can make a success in business, I can also."

A man at the club the other night said in speaking of Ruth Ellington's new business venture, "Now that women have found out they can support themselves, the men of the future will have harder work to keep their wives than they have had in the past. It will take something more than a wedding ring to make them think that they are obliged to live on in circumstances which spell unhappiness for them."

This man was a bachelor, Syd, but he seems to have had the right dope. Probably you, as a bachelor, thought the same thing. That is the reason neither of you have ever married.

TOMORROW: Jack concludes his letter—Leslie is gone to New York.

OLD AGE

The seas are quiet when the winds give o'er,
So calm are we when passions are no more,
For then we know how vain it is to boast
Of fleeting things, so certain to be lost
Clouds of affection from our younger eyes
Conceal the emptiness which age descries

The soul's dark cottage, battered and decayed,
Lets in new light through chinks that Time has made
Stronger by weakness, wiser men become
As they draw near their eternal eternal home
Leaving the old both worlds at once they view
That stand upon the threshold of the new

Cloar Campbell Wedding

The marriage of Miss Margaret Campbell of this city to James Cloar of Morganfield took place at 2 p. m. yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs P. E. Campbell on Dorchester avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev Sam P Martin of the First Baptist church and was witnessed by relatives and close friends of the young couple. The house was attractively decorated in Christmas greens. A beautiful arch of holly and spruce overhung with Christmas bells, had been built in the doorway connecting the two living rooms and the ceremony was performed under this arch. Before the ceremony Mrs Edward Yeager sang "At Dawning" and "Until" and William Keeney accompanied by Miss Bertha Hoe as pianist, played on the violin "Mighty Lak A Rose," and "The Songs My Mother Taught Me" Mr Keeney played Traumerei softly during the ceremony. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. Miss Doris Campbell and William Gill Nash, of Georgetown, entered the room first, then the bridegroom and his best man, Sam Pollock of Peewee Valley, came in from the dining room and the bride and her maid of honor, Miss Eleanor Campbell, came down the stairway. Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played as a recessional. The bride looked very beautiful in her dress of midnight blue cloth trimmed in squirrel with gray hat and shoes. She carried a boquet of pink rosebuds. Miss Doris Campbell wore a dress of brown kitten's ear crepe embroidered in beads and Miss Eleanor Campbell wore a costume of brown lace and charmeuse. An informal reception followed immediately after the ceremony at which time punch and cake were served. The newly married couple left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon in Florida.

Mrs Cloar, the eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs B. E. Campbell has lived all of her life in Middlesboro and is one of this city's most attractive young women. She attended school here and at Georgetown college where she met her husband. Mr Cloar is a graduate of Georgetown college. He is now teacher and athletic coach in the Morganfield high school.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

PARSNIPS

PARSNIPS are one of the cheapest and best winter vegetables.

They are a starchy food and served in their natural state but if combined with eggs and a certain amount of fat they add many calories to any menu.

Serve them with dark meats of high flavor.

These receipts for parsnips may help you to vary your winter menus.

Parsnip Balls

Six parsnips, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup flour, 1 egg.

Wash and scrape parsnips. Boil in salted water until tender. Drain and mash. Season with butter, salt and pepper. Add flour and eggs well beaten and mix well. Form into small balls. Roll into cracker crumbs, dip in egg slightly beaten with one tablespoon water, roll again in crumbs and fry to a golden brown in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper and serve. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch square of bread from the soft part of the loaf in 40 seconds.

It will take longer to cook parsnips that have been dug some time and become wilty than freshly dug and crisp ones.

Glazed Parsnips

Four parsnips, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 dessertspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons hot water.

Wash and scrape parsnips. Cut in pieces, crosswise three quarters of an inch thick. Put each piece flat in a large flat sauce pan or spider. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Dot with bits of butter and pour in the hot water at one side of the pan without disturbing the parsnips. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 15 minutes, or until tender. Remove cover and brown quickly in a very hot oven.

Parsnip Souffle

Four parsnips, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1½ cups soft bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk.

Wash and scrape parsnips and boil until tender in salted water. Drain and force through a potato ricer. Melt butter, add milk and bread crumbs and when very hot and smooth add parsnip. Season with salt and pepper and add the yolks of the eggs well beaten. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold into mixture. Turn into buttered baking dish and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

Parsnip Fritters

Wash and scrape parsnips and boil until tender in salted water. Cool and cut in slices ½ inch thick. Dip in frying batter and fry in deep hot fat to golden brown.

FRYING BATTER: Four tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ⅓ cup warm water, 2 eggs (whites).

Mix and sift flour and salt. Add melted butter and stir. Beat in [illegible] [illegible] Beat vigorously for five minutes and let stand half an hour. Fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Use as needed.

Why I Use Advertising As My Buying Guide

In my capacity as housewife I am the general manager of a household. Upon me devolves the duty of making rather large purchases which leads into another duty—that of economical expenditure of the household funds.

My husband reads very assiduously what he calls "trade papers." These papers pertain almost entirely to his business. He says he could not get along without them because they keep him posted on matters which come up in his business life every day.

In running my household I find that the newspapers and the magazines are my "trade papers." The advertisements tell me nearly everything I wish to know about the purchases I should make. Like my husband who spends hours upon hours engrossed in his trade magazines so that he may conduct his business more successfully, I study with care the advertisements in the newspapers and the magazines which I have found out enable me to conduct my business which is my household, more economically and successfully.

In doing my neighborhood buying I think that I am able to choose the store that gives me the greatest value for my money. My choice is always the one where I am sure to get the advertised goods I ask for and where I am not told: "Here is something else just as good." I buy advertised goods because experience has taught me I save money thereby.

It has been my observation that the storekeeper who handles advertised articles sells more goods and it isn't hard for me to figure out that if the dealer wants to make only a fair profit he can sell me goods much cheaper if he sells a great many goods than if he sells a smaller amount. Coincidently, I have noticed that dealers who do handle articles which are advertised seem to grow and expand.

I have often wondered if it isn't because the goods which they see on their own shelves remind them constantly of the forward-looking work which is being done by the manufacturer of those goods, thus setting an example for greater industry.

I know that if I want to buy a barrel of flour or a very large sack of flour I can buy it cheaper than I can buy a ten or twenty-five pound sack. My store-keeper can do the same thing in buying his merchandise. I have heard my husband talk often enough on the question of small profits and rapid turnover to know that it isn't the dealer who makes the long profit that gets ahead but the one who makes the small profit and turns his capital over and over. But this is not the only benefit I get in buying from a storekeeper who sells his customers goods which are advertised. The goods I buy are fresher and newer and I feel that because many of them have been advertised for years they are more dependable.

For how could people continue to buy them if they were not? And how could the manufacturers continue to advertise them if they did not buy?

Dr. Finley Heads National Child Welfare

New York.—Dr. John H. Finley, noted educator and journalist, has just been elected President of the National Child Welfare Association of 70 Fifth Avenue, New York, of which Herbert Hoover is Vice-President and Amos L. Prescott, Treasurer. Dr. Finley is deeply interested in the welfare of "all the children of all the people."

In his latest book, "The Debt Eternal", he tells of a memorable day when he had presided over a meeting of the great ones of the earth. "As I came to my home," he says, "clad in my academic robes, with a hood of brilliant color about my shoulders, three or four little boys playing near the door looked up in awe. At last one of them got his tongue and said, 'There goes John's father.' So at the end of all this day of glory, I was the father of my five year old boy. It is that great multitude whom he represents to me who are soon to possess this earth."

It is for the sake of this "great multitude" of children all over America that Dr. Finley is allying himself with the work of the National Child Welfare Association. Speaking of his recent election to the Presidency of the Association, Dr. Finley said, "My special interest in the work of the National Child Welfare Association lies in the fact that it has a big vision and has devised a practical method of making that vision real. Its vision is of the whole education of the whole child. In its educational material, health training is never divorced from character training, but the gaining of a healthy body is seen only as a first step in the making of an alert, trained mind and a sterling character. It is following the dictum of Montaigne, 'We have not to train up a soul, nor yet a body, but a man, and we cannot divide him.'

Realizing Its Vision

"The practical method by which the Association is realizing its vision of a healthier, more intelligent, finer generation is that of visual education, lectures, exhibits and community organization. From all over the country,—indeed from all over the world,—visitors and letters come to the National Child Welfare Association asking for advice on every possible phase of the child's physical, mental and moral welfare. Sometimes it is a 'mule-back nurse' from the Kentucky mountains who writes to tell how she is using the Associations posters to teach the children,—yes, and their parents, too,—to brush their teeth, and asking whether there are other posters that will back up her teaching regarding fresh air.

"Sometimes it is a deeply concerned group of women who want advice on how to start a child welfare center in their middle west town. Sometimes it is a librarian who needs some pictures to brighten the walls and to stimulate better reading habits in her little library in Maine. Or perhaps the head of a Children's Home wants some posters that will make the indifferent public realize what the Home is doing and lend it their support.

"The National Child Welfare Association is itself partly supported by private contributions, thus being enabled in every case to give its advice and aid freely and to provide its educational posters at cost, serving and co-operating not merely with the health agencies, but with every agency which, in any way, touches the physical, mental or moral life of the child."

The Church of God and World Peace

by The Reverend S. Parkes Cadman, D. D.

It is well understood that what may have been a comparative benefit in one age can become the decided curse of another. So the plea that war has occasionally been the agent of a new freedom has to be considered in the light of what it now is, does, and leaves as its bitter aftermath.

The Church of God, without reference to her divisions, will have to face this problem or suffer a setback which one does not care to contemplate. Her mission in the earth is already assigned. Her credentials belong to another realm than that of the state. She should be possessed by a greater love than nationalism or even democracy can inspire. Her affections are commandeered for Humanity as a whole. They have been defiled by what Will Irwin, journalist, war correspondent and author in his latest book, "Christ or Mars?" forcibly terms "bad biological habits."

Race, creed, color, distance, are all too prevalent in the conceptions of those who profess and call themselves Christians. It would seem as though they neither doubted their Gospel, nor yet believed it to be practicable. Yet the monstrous insanity of armed violence is patent to Christians and non-Christians alike.

Christian civilization is greatly indebted to Will Irwin for his volume, "Christ or Mars?" The author needs no prompting. His style shows the man to an unusual degree. It is challenging, provocative, direct, vivid, and penetrated by the quiet persistence which outlasts stormy invocation. He starts out to prove that war has gone beyond all compensatory stages, and is diametrically opposed to the Chistianity of Christ. The issue is raised in such a complete manner that evasion is impossible. Stripped of hereditary instincts, the combative element has to rely upon its native merit or demerit. Nor can a Christian avoid the conclusion that the time is ripe for radical readjustment upon this disputed point. Here, then, is a book which illuminates the debate, which shows that what is really religious is finally reasonable, and which rears a barrier between our race and the abyss of destruction.

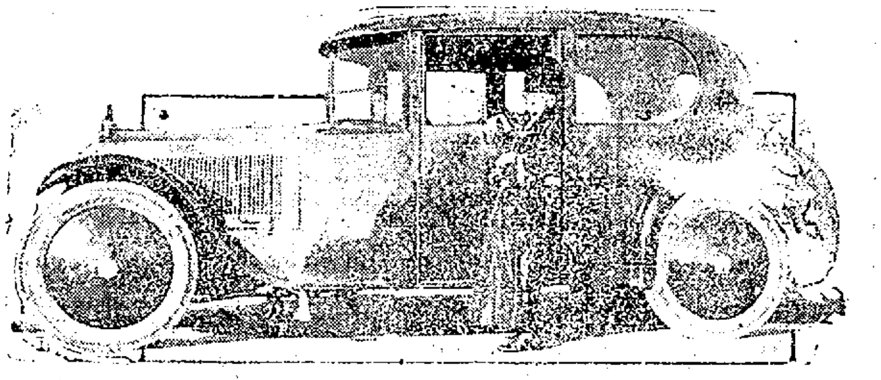
SHE'S NEARLY 90—BUT SPEEDY DRIVER



Don't get the idea that because Mrs. John J. Hallenbeck of Garden City, L. I. is 88, she can't drive an auto. Recently she was arrested in Miami, Fla., charged with violating the speed law. Here she is, with the car officials say she made travel 62 miles an hour.

On one Saturday last November [illegible] football games were played. Since each of these contesting teams would average about [illegible] men in its [illegible] that means something [illegible] college men playing football regularly. This furnishes a vast [illegible] the great field of contestants [illegible] the Athletic World All-America [illegible] of 192[illegible] has been taken.

The standard of football playing this year has been unusually high. So many men of exceptional ability [illegible] available that the selection of the first team is only slightly superior to that of the second and third elevens.

The startling feature of the [illegible] season was the dearth of [illegible] thing very rare [illegible] was an abundance of [illegible] line and the backfield [illegible] there were no outstanding [illegible] former.

Even the coaches [illegible] explain the situation [illegible] simply one of those football [illegible] which arise so frequently.

In the selection of the [illegible] after all the votes were in [illegible] found that five men were [illegible] east and six from the west. [illegible] even in some [illegible] close that only a few votes [illegible] the successful first team from the [illegible] end.

McRae of Syracuse [illegible] the vote of the coaches [illegible] comfortable margin [illegible] Minn[illegible] was second.

The selection of Milstead [illegible] the tackle was [illegible] The other tackle position was [illegible] up between Below of Wisconsin [illegible] Sundstrom of Cornell until the last minute. Competition [illegible] that Below won the decision by one vote.

The two guards selected, McMillen of Illinois and Hubbard of Harvard had a substantial lead over their nearest competitors, Welch of Colgate and Bedenk of Penn State.

[illegible] of Michigan [illegible] developed in the west in the last few years is first choice for center [illegible] with Garbisch of the Army [illegible] Both are young [illegible] adept at k[illegible].

Pfann of Cornell [illegible] the unanimous choice for the quarterback position. He received [illegible] than any other player selected [illegible] year's eleven and excepting Milstead of Yale who was well liked by the coaches.

Pfann is a four-head man. He can run, kick, forward pass and receive. He is probably the greatest football player of the season and the highest scorer in the entire country.

The halfback positions go to Grange of Illinois and Wilson of Penn State, two shining lights of the 192[illegible] season. These two ran a tight race and had a considerable margin over the rest of the field. Grange is rated the fastest man on the gridiron. Wilson, who was close behind Grange is a versatile athlete.

The selection of John Levi of the Haskell Indians may come as a surprise to many football fans. He gets a close decision over Mallory of Yale and Nevers of California. Levi is [illegible]
